

Hello, everybody!

Just thought that you all might like to read a little bit about UFO's. Yes! UFO's exist in the year 2070. And how!

Thank you for the encouragement on the matter of doing this little bit of research for the endeavor of telling you this.

I sort of miss you in a bizarre way at NYSSAB #2 and NYSSAB #3. Keeping track of your names has become impossible.

Sorry. Project DumbDown did that to me. In the future, we don't get familiar outside of family and workgroup.

My IQ is back to normal, however, I've just plumb forgotten how to relate to folks in the year 2025. Get out, you might say.

Sincerely yours,
Angie Jane Gray

To Virginia, who might or might not have loved this little work in process. To everyone at CompArt for working on clip art.

Acknowledgements

Wow, there's just so many people to thank on this one. Excuse me, time to work on this in a bit. Dinner! And how!

First of all, thank you to Five, for showing me where the priorities are at lulu.com as well as at Amer. Software Dev.

Secondly, thank you to everyone at the Library organization as well as to the folks at Philanthropy.

Thank you to my parents as well as to Michelle and her young Cameron, former owners of Ozzy, the secretary.

Ozzy is much better at thanking people than I am at the present time. Ozzy is the ambassador of thanks.

Thank you Doug for forcing me to continue to do video when I had given up. Back before the flying machines.

Business in the Year 2070

The who of business in the year 2070 is no longer as important as it was back in the first quarter of the 21st century.

The what of business in the year 2070, the how of the what of the business is important in the year 2070.

Earth is no longer the center of the universe in the year 2070; its mainly a place to collect plants.

There are UFO's in the year 2070, things, flying objects that I cannot find in Jane's Book of Aircraft.

Ozzy has discovered these things, they are toys, evidently. They are not aircraft. They now fly around my office.

I work in the Department of Antiquities at the Library in the year 2070. Antiquities are valuable.

Evidently, I'm valuable in the year 2070, some sort of popular historical figure, at least that's what I've been told.

Ozzy operates these little toys as they keep visitors away.

There are lots of holographic presentations in Sanskrit, Nepalese, Martian, Lao and Bengali to watch in the year 2070.

The Library is a great place to be for me in the future. I've really enjoyed working at the Library in 2070 for several years.

Researching about the past is a lot of fun for me to do, a lot of people learn a lot about many things.

It's great to have genuine newspaper clippings and magazines in the future. They do very nicely, preserved in kudzu starch.

We have holographic presentations about kudzu at the Library in 2070 for you to watch. You should stop by and visit.

Ozzy runs a day care center at the library, and the teenagers love company. Reptiles are major consumers in 2070.

There are many things that bearded dragons purchase such as to-go cricket farms, textiles, tarps, yurts, heating lamps, plants...

It's not like it used to be before the changes happened. I don't get out much at the Library, which is okay, as I'm from the past there.

I figure that it's better if I just keep to myself and stick to what must be done, rather than socialize too much. Why spoil the surprise?

Studying Jane's Guide to Aircraft, the whole series, is a very important thing. There are many editions of this fine work. Aircraft are major employers in the year 2070, the aeronautics type, the aerospace type, the mass transit type, as well as the toy type of aircraft.

This is a shocking photo in the year 2070 for most reptiles. It's a naked iguana. Yes, back then, reptiles scarcely ever wore clothing.

Ozzy and myself have documented the present-day ongoing at zoos and aquariums across the United States.

These are evidently shocking to folks in the year 2070, or considered to be bizarre and tortuous, at the least.

This is, at least, what I have been told by my advisor as to what is going on out there. I am trying to be respectful.

Respecting what we have left of this construct of a planet is going to be very important. Keeping the place from falling apart.

Major employers for the art of "cleaning up your room" are bioengineering firms, tectonic plate repair firms, substrate repair.

There's daily water purification, water engineering, air filter innovations, soil science, soil engineering, mechanical engineering.

Everyone begins learning plant science during nursery school. A complete garden is expected in order to graduate.

If you have any questions about these concepts possibly being fallacies or bogus, the boss can tell you how it is.

This is the boss.
